We think this well known corner ought to receive some special attention from the police, for the facilities for obtaining cheap and very unwholesome drinks there are no doubt responsible for a large proportion of the cases of destitution and drunkenness which come before the courts. If the illicit sale of cheap native spirit to seamen were effectually stopped a great temptation would be taken out of the way of men who are only too ready to was smoking opium and drinking as you know. succumb to it when it is constantly before them. Residents are often appealed to for assistance by men of the beachcombing class whose appearance plainly indicates that they "have not tasted food or raiment for two days" or more, as CHARLEY SPRAG-19 would [21] say. To refuse them seems unkind, but it is still more unkind to give them money, for with that they resort to "Samshoo Corner" to spend what has been given them in drink instead of food. To enable relief to be given without the risk of its being abused, the Committee of the Temperance Hall some time ago instituted a system of selling orders which would entitle the men to whom they were given, to a meal at that institution. This system has now been further improved, Egypt. books of orders being issued free of charge, the sums due on the orders to be collected afterwards in the same way as ordinary chits. The Attorney General addressed the court for the defence at considerable length. The Attorney-General said there was no evilence of acquiescence in this case. His Lordship said he had been surprised find that the defendant had pulled down the wall of another man's house which he or his predecessors had seen in course of erection and had made no objection to. If the right had been surrendered by the Crown the Orown had no more right than any private individual to lease that ground which had been surrendered. The Attorney-General said that still the ques-tion of boundaries did affect the question, and he proposed to call Mr. Hancock, an officer of the Surveyor-General's Department, who carefully surveyed the ground. He should show by that gentleman's evidence that even according to plans put in by the plaintiffs the ground which really belonged to Mr. Stephens's lot lay actually some distance beyond the line he had taken, and beyond the point where he had out away the plaintiffs' wall.

His Lordship said that was a strong measure, and he thought it was a mistake to do so for the fow inches that had been gained.

Mr. Francis-A whole two inches. The Attorney-General—No, it was more than that. The line of the plaintiffs' building could not have been the correct boundary, because the boundaries of these lots were always made in straight lines. The part of the building which Mr. Stephens had cut away formed a sort of elbow which made the line crooked. Had Mr. Staphens waited before taking that measure it might, perhaps, have been better, but the boundary work bluow qidebror His Lordship would show that he was justified to some extent in what he had done. The amount of space cut away was important, for its continuation would have a considerable effect upon the size of the lot, and Mr. Stephens required it to build upon. The to terms.

Attorney-General then went into the method 3rd.—Is this only a card played by France to try by which Mr. Hancock arrived at his conclusions, and force England to accept the situation and the facts which supported them.

Mr. William St. John Hugh Hancock; land surveyor of the Surveyor General's Department. was called, and his examination by the Attorney-General occupied the whole of the afternoon. He produced plans and drawings that bear out what the Attorney-General had said as to boundaries. From a careful survev of the ground, and a minute inspection of all existing sale and other plans, drawings, &c., and the records of the Land Office, he had no doubt as to what were the original boundaries of these lots, and that the plaintiffs had encroached considerably beyond their boundary. In considering the matter of the extension of Mr. Stephens's lot on the surrender of his lease, he followed his astructions of not interfering with existing buildings on the lets more than was possible, and Stephens would have been considerably more to with liability limited by shares. the eastward than where the defendant now conget to enforce his boundary. This was a claim for money alleged to have been supplied to the captain of the ship for necessaries by the plaintiff as agent for the owners of the ship. The defence was that it had not been shown the money had been supplied for necessaries and the Attorney-General opposed reference of the matter to the Registrar to ascertain what, if anything, was expended for necessaries. His Lordship, in delivering judgment, alluded to the case of the West Friesland which the Attorney-General had cited in opposing the reference of the case to the Registrar, and he held that as it had been definitely made out in that case that the money was not for necessaries, it did not affect this case. CHINESE WAR.

The situation is now (says the Shanghai Mercury) replote with grave eventualities. We hear that instructions have been sent by the French Government to Admiral Courbet authorizing him to enforce strict belligerent rights including search of montral vessels, on the high seas, and notification to the same effect has already been issued by H.B.M.'s Vice-Consul at Shanghai In the changed state of the situation, the following questions are asked in Shanghai:-

1st .- Do the French intend to enforce strictly Their right on all neutral vessels, or only on British? England, by declaring that sufficient state of war existed to nut the Foreign Enlistment Actinto vigorous action as far as Hongkong is concerned, has put herself, it sooms to some, out of Court, should it suit the French to search all vessels outering Hongkong, which they have a just right to do, and which would be a much easier thing to do than to blookade Formosa, As mos vessels now on the way from London and other neutral ports have more or less war material on board, they are liable on search, to be then taken to the nearest French port -and possibly have the ship, &c., confisoated, This would mean a practical blockade of Hongkong and a most severe blow to England, especially as large amounts of wir material for Hongkong fortifications are on the way out in merchant vessels.

2nd—Does the threatened action strike only at England? Germany has made no sign yet, nor have any other nations as far as we know. They are not out of Court as England is, and can plead that war not having been declared no right of search exists on the high seas. This would drive the carrying of warlike or doubtful material into other then British bottoms, which would materially hurt our shipping so long as the state of war at present declared, by England remember, exists. Possibly France means to stick to her programme of reprisals which may last for a very considerable time, as nothing short of an expedition to Paking or extreme pressure from outside can bring the Chinese

Our social season may be now considered at height, or perhaps a little past it. The winter amusements have been crowding us for the last two weeks. The official skating rink is in splendid order and is an unfailing resource for the beauty and muscle of the settlement to disport and display themselves. Great matches at bowls and billiards keep the robust males in healthy excitement up to the small hours. Milder entertainments of Penny Readings at the Temperance Hall and Concerts at the Club draw different sections of the community, and the A.D.C. supplice-still another variety, indeed, -crowns the

The two gunboats add much to the enjoyment of the winter. The general community has comparatively little direct intercourse with the Russian, owing to the language difficulty, but there is a considerable Russian civil community in Tientein. most genial and hospitable, through whose good offices the neval officers and the general residents are brought together. The Russians retain the old style, so that their presence here gives us practically two Christmases and two New Years. Captain Aschenborn and the officers of the Nautilus have contributed greatly to our enjoyment this winter; and no set of men were ever so popular here as these stalwart Teutons with their frequent birthdays. The band is quite wonderful for a small vessel. The way these Germans work is a cantion-not now, of course, for the vessels are housed in with mats, and drill is much reduced: but in the open season they are at it all day, rolling the big guns about, exercising in the tops, hoisting ambulance chairs up and down the rigging, and so forth. Men so thoroughly trained as these are in all the modern movements will be nwkward customers to meet in hostile encounter. There is still a good deal of water, i.e., ice, on the plain, and our old have-hunting sports have not been resumed this winter. Neither have any shooting parties gone to Mongolia, as the unset. YOKOHAMA.

The fifteen steamships ordered from England by the Union Navigation Company have all reached Japan, but the company, finding their present fleet still inadequate for their transport business, have now ordered three more steamers from Glasgow, to be named the Sanyodo Maru, Hokkaido Maru, and Saniudo Maru. Fire broke out about seven o'clock p.m. on the 2nd inst., at No. 160, occupied by a Chinaman named Ah Kin. The flames originated in an apartment tenanted by a scaman named Ah Hoi. who was absent at the time, and were first seen by a Chinaman named Ah Chim, who attempted to enter the room, but was unable to do so in consequence of the smoke. In a few minutes the whole house was in a blaze, and in spite of the efforts of the firemen the building was entirely destroyed by eight o'clock, two adjoininghouses being also partially burned. Three steam fire ongines, the "Reflet" and "Victoria" and the Japanese police engine, were on the ground, as also were a large number of manual engines.

The following letter has been addressed by His Excellency Admiral Count Kawamura, Minister of Marine, to Lieutenant A. G. S. Hawes, who left on the 31st ult., for Europe to take up his appointment as H.B.M.'s Consul at Navassa:-Six,-It gives me great satisfaction to learn that you have been promoted by the Government of your country to the post of Consul at Nayassa in Africa. In short, throughout the fourteen years during which you were attached to the Japanese Admiralty, the diligence you manifested, and the large results it achieved, command my sincere admiration. Now that you are about to return to your country. I desire to you are about to return to your country. We learn that this letter was accompanied by a handsome present, and, further, that it is in contemplation to promote Lieutenant Hawes to the Third Class Order of the Rising Sun, the Fourth Class of which he already holds. It is pleasant to find that the services of an officer whose career in Japan has done himself and the corps to which he originally belonged so much credit, are fully recognised by the Government of this country. Lieutenant Hawes may be said to have assisted at the birth of the Japanese Navy. He was proceeded, it is true, by the naval mission fore the Restoration. ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY. WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDABIN PRONUNCIATION.

An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, laid. and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Panti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not proviously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characprized Chinese publications.

To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration:-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 OWNERS, will be RESPONSIBLE for any Chinese characters, and Modhurst's English DEBT contracted by the Officers or the Crews and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese charac- Hongkong Harbour :ters. Again, despite all the grammars and Alden Besse, Am. bk., J. A. O'Brien.—Melother elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applichers & Co. cations and equivalents of different words which COMMODORE, Am. ship, Blanchard.—Order. have one general meaning. Of these examples Coloma, Am. bk., C. M. Noyes.—Melchers & this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hithert; pub. EMILY, Brit. bark, W. Crichton.—Captain.

For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its Helicon, Am. ship J. B. Howes,--Arnhold, pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who JAPAN, Brit.str., T.S. EXTRACTS.

THE GOLDEN VANITEE." correspondent of the Daily News seems to be in possession of a very old version of this popular sea song. It differs from others that we have seen in several particulars which show a more ancient origin. One version well known at the present day we print below. It is far more brief than the ballad of which we wire the tune elsowhere, and the air (we may print it on mother occasion) is more lively :--There was a gallant ship, and a gallant ship was sh Hie iddle doe! for the Lowlands low! And she went by the name o' the Golden Vaniles, (gowdon h As the sailed for the Lowlands low!

And she hadne sailed a longue, a longue or barely thre His iddle doe! for the Lowlands low! When she fell in with a French gallee As she sailed for the Lowlands low! Then up spake the cabin-boy, and up spake he: What'll yo gi'o me, an' I sink the French galleo !

Then up spake the captain, and up spake he: "I'll gi'e ye an estate in the north countree." "Then sow me up tight in a black bull's skin. And throw me overboard, eink or swim! So they sewed him up tight in a black bull's skin. And they threw him everboard, sink or awim. And awa' and awa' and awa' swam he. Till he came up to the French gallee.
